S/D HISTORICAL SOCIETY'S JULY 8 "TUESDAY TALK"
LOOKS AT ARTWORK RESURRECTED FROM TRASH.

JUNE 27, 2014 -- Maryjo Lemanski will be talking trash at the next Saugatuck-Douglas Historical Society "Tuesday Talk" on July 8 in the History Center at The Old School House, 130 Center Street, Douglas. The one-hour program begins when the school bell rings at 11 a.m.; admission is free and public attendance is invited.

Lemanski, director of Water Street Gallery in Douglas, will guide the audience through an interactive visual experience using works from her gallery as examples, discussing how artists use "found materials" (a.k.a. trash) to create works of art.

Water Street Gallery specializes in contemporary fine art created by more than sixty established and emerging artists, and hosts a rotating exhibition schedule of group shows by participating artists.

This Tuesday Talk is sponsored by S/DHS members Sharon M. Kelly and Floyd Fleming.
